AREA

- The base is named after Major General Joseph Henry Pendleton, a distinguished Marine Corps veteran who commanded all Naval forces during the Santo Domingo expedition of 1916, as well as Pacific tours of duty aboard the USS Dakota and Jupiter.
- On September 25, 1942, seven months after Pendleton's death, President Franklin D. Roosevelt officially dedicated the San Diego base named for the late General.
- California Historical Landmark
- 125,000 acres / 17 Miles of Coastline from a Spanish land grant
- HBO Miniseries "The Pacific" showcased Camp Pendleton
- Approximately 90 bison aboard the base.
- Camp Pendleton is home to the Edson Range, a firing range complex that holds the four largest firing ranges on the base.

OBJECTIVE I - PVEC SITE RECON WITH FRIENDLY'S MISSION OVERVIEW & ORIENTATION.

Add Iron Mike's Bar, a former Officers club, nestles inside USMC Camp Pendleton's Pacific Views Event Center to your Experience. It displays a fine array of USMC relics and gear from Sergeant Major "Iron Mike" Mervosh. This honored Marine battled through World War II, Korea, and Vietnam.

The Sgt. Reckless monument is a life-size bronze statue honoring the Korean War warhorse, Staff Sergeant Reckless, who bravely served with the US Marines. It was unveiled at Camp Pendleton's Pacific Views Event Center in 2016. The monument depicts Reckless carrying ammunition and equipment through rugged terrain, a testament to her heroic contributions during the war.
